Major Assessments/Units/Topics:
Video Production is a project based course requiring self-disciplined students who are community driven in service and interested in audio/visual technology. Students who take a third year of Video Production (CCTV) will be expected leaders in the broadcast class.

This year-long course will produce 30+ ‘video-news-magazines’ that are posted on YouTube and shared with the school community every Friday morning.

Building on the foundation of the units and assessments in Video Production 3-4, students enrolled in Video Production 5-6 will interview and audition for the roles of anchor, sports anchor, field-report producer, lead editor, and director or producer of the student production.
Students are assessed by their leadership organization and team building skills. These students will be accountable for teams of Video Production 1-2 & 3-4 students who are placed in their respective sections, and therefore must have a solid understanding of the show line-up, class technology, and story building.

These advanced students will run Friday Production Meetings with the entire class, will scrutinize the broadcast line-up and presentation on a weekly basis, will monitor the field-report and social media content calendars, and will be directly accountable to the teacher for the structure and success of the weekly broadcast.
